LEGAL RECOGNITIONS FOR OPPOSITE-SEX COUPLE	GEOGRAPHY	LAW	AVAILABLE TO SAME-SEX COUPLE
Marriage, registered	National legislation provides for entry into marriage; each State and Territory provides for the registration of a marriage performed within their jurisdiction according to the national law.	Marriage Act 1961 (Cth) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Subsection 5(1): “marriage means the union of a man and a woman to the exclusion of all others, voluntarily entered into for life”; and • Although marriages can only be formed under Federal law, each State and Territory separately maintains a registry of marriages and requires that a marriage formed within its jurisdiction be registered. Note that a failure to register a marriage under State or Territory law is an offence but it does not invalidate a marriage. 	No

De facto , unregistered	Northern Territory	De Facto Relationships Act 1991 (NT) Two persons, regardless of sex, are in a “de facto relationship” if they are not married but have a marriage-like relationship. Other than for marriages, there is no provision for the registration, but it is possible to apply to a court for a declaration as to the existence of such a de facto relationship.	Yes

2. What are the requirements to be able to enter into the above relationships?

(i) If a geographic link is required:

Marriage, registered	There is no requirement to be an Australian citizen or a permanent resident to legally marry in Australia. The marriage ceremony must be conducted by an Australian resident celebrant and the marriage must physically occur in Australia except in narrowly defined circumstances.
De facto (Northern Territory)	A person may seek a declaration from a State Court that a “de facto partnership” exists regardless of whether one or both of the persons has ever been domiciled in Northern Territory. However, in order to obtain full benefits under the Act, the following conditions must be satisfied: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> a) one or both parties to the de facto relationship must live in the Northern Territory on the date of the application; and b) either both partners have lived together in the Territory for not less than one third of the period of their de facto relationship; or substantial contributions to the relationship have been made in the Territory by the applicant.

(ii) If other substantive eligibility criteria must be satisfied:

Marriage (Australia wide)	To be legally married in Australia, a man and woman (“marriage” being defined as only between man and woman in the Marriage Amendment Act 2004 (Cth)) must: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • understand what marriage means and freely consent to becoming husband and wife; • use specific words during the ceremony; and • give written notice of their intention to marry to their authorised celebrant.

Defacto (Northern Territory)	Under the De Facto Relationships Act 1991 (NT), two persons are considered to be in a de facto relationship if they are not married, but have a “married-like” relationship. To determine whether two persons are in a de facto relationship, all circumstances of their relationship must be taken into account, including such of the following matters as are relevant in the circumstances of the particular case: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> a) the duration of the relationship; b) the nature and extent of common residence; c) whether or not a sexual relationship exists; d) the degree of financial dependence or interdependence, and any arrangements for financial support, between them; e) the ownership, use and acquisition of property; f) the degree of mutual commitment to a shared life; g) the care and support of children; h) the performance of household duties; or i) the reputation and public aspects of their relationship. There is no provision for registration of “de facto relationships” in this Territory. However, a person: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> a) who alleges that a de facto relationship exists or has existed between himself or herself and another person; or b) whose pecuniary interests, or whose rights or obligations at law or in equity, are affected according to whether a de facto relationship exists or has existed between two other persons; may apply to a court for a declaration as to the existence of such a de facto relationship. If the court is satisfied that a de facto relationship exists or has existed, it may make a declaration that persons named in the declaration have or have had a de facto relationship. If the court makes such a declaration, it must state in the declaration that the de facto relationship existed: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> a) at a date specified in the declaration; and/or b) between dates specified in the declaration. While the declaration remains in force, the persons named in the declaration are to be presumed conclusively for all purposes to have had a de facto relationship at the date specified and/or between the dates so specified in the declaration. The De Facto Relationships Act 1991 (NT) does not specify what documents or information are needed to support an application for a declaration (nor are there any regulations made under this Act).

3. If both marriage and civil unions exist:

- (a) Identify any significant differences in eligibility; and
- (b) Briefly highlight how they interact if both are in effect (e.g., in some countries, entering into a marriage with the same or a different person automatically dissolves any civil union that the two parties were previously party to, making the latter vulnerable and potentially circumventing separation laws).
- (c) If both marriage and civil unions are available to same-sex couples, briefly highlight areas where major differences exist between marriage and civil unions (e.g., taxes, adoption, immigration, etc.).

A

De facto (Northern Territory)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> a) Marriage in Australia is defined as “the union of a man and woman to the exclusion of all others, voluntarily entered into for life” under the Marriage Act 1961 (Cth). In Northern Territory, if two persons are not married but have a “marriage-like relationship”, they are in a de facto relationship under the De Facto Relationships Act 1991 (NT). For the purposes of determining whether two persons are in a de facto relationship, it is irrelevant that the persons are different sexes or the same sex, and that either of the persons is married to another person or is in another de facto relationship. b) Two persons cannot be in a de facto relationship under the De Facto Relationships Act 1991 (NT) if they are married to each other. c) Not applicable

Q

4. What kinds of pre-existing relationships make you ineligible to enter each kind of relationship?

Marriage, registered	If a person is already married to a different person, they cannot marry again. Marrying a parent, grandparent, child, grandchild, brother or sister is prohibited and persons must be at least eighteen years old, unless a court has approved a marriage (where one party is aged between sixteen and eighteen years old).
De facto (Northern Territory)	If two persons are already married to each other, they cannot also be in a de facto relationship under the De Facto Relationships Act 1991 (NT). However, the De Facto Relationships Act 1991 (NT) makes clear that it is not relevant for the purposes of determining whether two persons are in a de facto relationship that either of the persons is married to another person or is in another de facto relationship.

5. When a couple comes to the Northern Territory, is their pre-existing relationship recognized? If not, is there any formalized avenue for obtaining recognition?

A

Marriage, registered	Australia is a signatory to the Convention on Celebration and Recognition of the Validity of Marriages signed at The Hague on 14 March 1978. An overseas marriage will generally be recognised in Australia if it: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • was a valid marriage in the overseas country; and • would have been recognised as valid under Australian law if the marriage had taken place in Australia (foreign formed same sex marriages are thus not recognised as legal marriages in Australia). However, the following exception applies such that same sex marriages entered into overseas are not recognized: “88EA Certain unions are not marriages A union solemnised in a foreign country between: (a) a man and another man; or (b) a woman and another woman; must not be recognised as a marriage in Australia.”
De facto (Northern Territory)	A pre-existing relationship may be recognised as a de facto relationship if it meets the eligibility criteria described above.

6. How can each form of relationship be dissolved? What is the residency requirement or other link to the Northern Territory for an authority to grant a divorce/dissolution?

Marriage, registered.	A Court can grant a divorce (including foreign formed marriages) provided that both the parties: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • regard Australia as their home and intend to live in Australia indefinitely, or • are Australian citizens by birth, descent or by grant of Australian citizenship, or • ordinarily live in Australia and have done so for 12 months immediately before filing for divorce. The Court must be satisfied that the parties seeking divorce have lived separately and apart for at least 12 months, and that there is no reasonable likelihood of resuming married life. It is possible to live together in the same home and still be separated. Because a union solemnised in a foreign country between same-sex couples must not be recognised as a marriage in Australia, an Australian court would not grant a divorce in relation to a foreign-formed same sex marriage.

De facto (Northern Territory)	The De Facto Relationships Act 1991 (NT) is silent as to when or how a “de facto relationship” may be dissolved. Presumably, a “de facto relationship” will dissolve when two persons no longer meet the eligibility criteria described above. If the court has made a declaration stating that a de facto relationship exists or has existed, the court may later make an order annulling the declaration: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> a) on the application of a person who applied for the declaration, or could have applied for it, or is affected by it; and b) if the court is satisfied that new facts or circumstances have arisen which have not previously been disclosed, and could not by the exercise of reasonable diligence have been so disclosed. It is also possible to apply to a court for a declaration that the persons named in the declaration are not in or were not at a particular time in a de facto relationship. The court may make this declaration if it is satisfied that a de facto relationship does not exist or did not at a particular time exist.
